FROM THE PASTOR'S HEART

March 22, 2026

Dear brothers and sisters,

A few evenings ago, I was walking home with Father Vito from Steinway Street—the same night we were returning from the Ramadan Dinner I mentioned last weekend. After a long stretch of bitter cold, it felt like a gift to be outside again. The air was still cool, but you could feel the difference. The neighborhood felt alive with many people talking, laughing, greeting one another. Young people lingered outside cafés, children ran along the sidewalks, and shop doors were open with music spilling into the street. After months of cold, it felt as if life was returning, slowly but surely.

After strolling along the busy 30th Avenue, we turned onto a quieter street. There, everything changed. I noticed a building with its windows tightly shut, curtains drawn, no light inside, no movement, no sound. While everything around it was full of life, that one place felt closed off and silent, almost like a tomb. We did not stay there long. It felt too dark, too quiet, too lifeless, and so we turned back toward the livelier avenue.

As we walked, I found myself thinking how easily we can end up like that—not only in places, but within ourselves. Outwardly, everything may seem fine. We go about our routines, we carry our responsibilities, we do what we have to do. But inwardly, something can be closed off, heavy, buried.

In today's Gospel, we hear about Lazarus, a close friend of Jesus, who had died and had already been in the tomb for four days (cf. John 11:1-45). His family was grieving, and those around them believed that everything was over. Yet Jesus comes to the tomb, asks that the stone be rolled away, and calls out, "Lazarus, come out!" And Lazarus comes forth. Then Jesus says, "Unbind him, and let him go free."

This Gospel is not only about what happened to Lazarus. It is about us as well. In different ways, we all know what it means to be in a kind of tomb. Sometimes it is a habit we struggle to break, something that isolates us little by little. Sometimes it is anger, or words that wound, or patterns that damage our relationships. At other times, it is more subtle—cynicism, prejudice, or a quiet indifference that slowly takes hold of the heart. There are also moments when we simply grow tired. We pray less, we hope less, and without even noticing it, something within us begins to close.

Jesus, however, does not remain at a distance. He comes close, He calls us by name, and He invites us to step out of whatever holds us back, into a fuller and freer life. And He reminds us that we do not do this alone.

I think again of that same evening. As we passed a busy bus stop, a woman suddenly called out, "Father!" She set down her bags and came toward us with great joy, telling us how much it meant to see priests on the street, where she least expected it. Though she is not Catholic, she shared that her husband was baptized and that she encourages him to return. She herself sometimes goes into St. Joseph's Church down the street simply to leave something for the poor.

As she spoke, her eyes filled with tears. That brief encounter clearly meant a great deal to her. She said it was a reminder of God in her life. She also mentioned that her Catholic friends often speak about the welcome and reverence they experience at our parish, and I invited her warmly to come and see for herself. In that moment, it was clear that something had opened in her. She seemed encouraged and renewed. I could see that she had become alive, with a broad smile on her face.

Brothers and sisters, that is what it means to "unbind one another." We are called to encourage, to forgive, to support, and to help one another take that step out of whatever holds us back.

As we continue our Lenten journey, we do not need to do everything at once. But we can take one step. We can allow the Lord to lead us out of what has been closing in on us—and we can be attentive to those around us, helping them do the same.

In Christ,

Msgr. "John" Cuong M. Pham

DEL CORAZON DEL PASTOR

22 de marzo, 2026

Queridos hermanos y hermanas,

Hace unos días, al caer la tarde, caminaba de regreso a casa con el Padre Vito desde Steinway Street—la misma noche en que volvíamos de la cena de Ramadán que les mencioné el fin de semana pasado. Después de tantas semanas de frío intenso, fue un verdadero regalo poder estar nuevamente afuera. El aire todavía estaba fresco, pero ya se sentía diferente, y el vecindario estaba lleno de vida. Había gente conversando, riendo, saludándose. Jóvenes reunidos frente a los cafés, niños corriendo por las aceras, tiendas abiertas con música que salía a la calle. Después de meses de invierno, parecía que la vida regresaba, poco a poco.

Después de caminar por la concurrida 30th Avenue, doblamos hacia una calle más tranquila. Allí todo cambió. Noté un edificio con las ventanas completamente cerradas, las cortinas corridas, sin luz adentro—sin movimiento, sin sonido. Mientras todo alrededor estaba lleno de vida, ese lugar se sentía cerrado, silencioso, casi como una tumba. No nos quedamos mucho tiempo. Se sentía demasiado oscuro y sin vida, así que regresamos a la avenida más animada.

Mientras caminábamos, pensaba en lo fácil que es terminar así—no solo en ciertos lugares, sino también dentro de nosotros mismos. Por fuera, todo puede parecer normal. Cumplimos con nuestras responsabilidades, seguimos nuestras rutinas. Pero por dentro, algo puede estar cerrado, pesado, como enterrado.

En el Evangelio de hoy escuchamos la historia de Lázaro, un amigo cercano de Jesús, que llevaba ya cuatro días en el sepulcro (cfr. Juan 11, 1-45). Su familia estaba de luto, y todos pensaban que ya no había nada que hacer. Pero Jesús se acerca, pide que quiten la piedra y grita: "¡Lázaro, sal fuera!" Y Lázaro sale. Entonces Jesús dice: "Desátenlo y déjenlo ir."

Este Evangelio no es solo sobre Lázaro. También habla de nosotros. De distintas maneras, todos sabemos lo que es estar en una especie de "tumba". A veces es un hábito que no logramos dejar, algo que poco a poco nos aísla. Otras veces es el enojo, palabras que hieren, o actitudes que dañan nuestras relaciones. En otros casos, es algo más sutil: el desánimo, los prejuicios, o una indiferencia que poco a poco se apodera del corazón. También hay momentos en que simplemente nos cansamos: oramos menos, esperamos menos, y sin darnos cuenta, algo dentro de nosotros se va cerrando.

Pero Jesús no se queda a distancia. Él se acerca, nos llama por nuestro nombre y nos invita a salir, a vivir una vida más plena y más libre. Y nos recuerda que no tenemos que hacerlo solos.

Pienso nuevamente en esa misma tarde. Al pasar por una parada de autobús llena de gente, una mujer gritó: "¡Padre!" Se acercó con mucha alegría, diciéndonos cuánto significaba ver sacerdotes en la calle. Aunque no es católica, nos compartió que su esposo está bautizado y que ella lo anima a regresar. Ella misma a veces entra a la iglesia de San José para ayudar a los pobres.

Mientras hablaba, se le llenaron los ojos de lágrimas. Ese breve encuentro claramente significó mucho para ella. Nos dijo que fue un recordatorio de Dios en su vida. También mencionó que sus amigos católicos le hablan mucho del ambiente de acogida, de fe y de respeto que experimentan en nuestra parroquia, y aproveché para invitarla con cariño a que venga y lo experimente por sí misma. En ese momento, se podía notar que algo se había abierto en su interior. Se le veía animada, renovada, con una gran sonrisa—como si algo en ella hubiera vuelto a la vida.

Hermanos y hermanas, eso es lo que significa "desatar unos a otros". Estamos llamados a animarnos, a perdonarnos y a ayudarnos a dar ese paso que nos saque de lo que nos tiene atados.

En esta Cuaresma, no tenemos que hacerlo todo de una vez. Pero sí podemos dar un paso. Dejar que el Señor nos saque de lo que nos cierra por dentro, y ayudar a otros a hacer lo mismo.

En Cristo,

Mons. "Juan" Cuong M. Pham
